DAVIS JEAN-NOEL

COLLEGIATE DECA VICE PRESIDENT

Davis Jean-Noel is a four-year Collegiate DECA member and recent graduate of Johnson & Wales University Providence majoring in marketing with a specialization in digital media & marketing analytics. He started his DECA journey as a freshman at Mount Olive High School where he became a positive influence for his chapter and a strong competitor. Through Collegiate DECA, Davis discovered his passion for marketing and leadership; quickly becoming more devoted to supporting his fellow students and community. After a year of competing in Collegiate DECA, he was elected his chapter's Vice President of Marketing & Communications where he built up his chapter's brand presence on campus with vast skills in social media marketing and creative advertising. Soon after, for two years, Davis spearheaded the marketing for his association's conference and finished strong by becoming Chapter President his junior year. Since holding that position, Davis has aimed to express how Collegiate DECA is such a fantastic platform to help members build their own brand and career.
